Developers

- Anarchistic driven persons
- They respect competence
- They don't follow hierarchy

If they have to, they behave demotivated and unproductive!

After a while ... they finally quit ...

Developers

- Craftsman not industrials
- Quality not quantity
- Get it right, not fast

Developers

- Developers are often forced to act in an „all in one“ position
- Heavy time pressure, based on bad „top to bottom“ decisions
- Universities don't focus those problems enough

Developers

- Have problems in interface design
- Don't test the interface by humans
- Less interest to gain UX knowledge

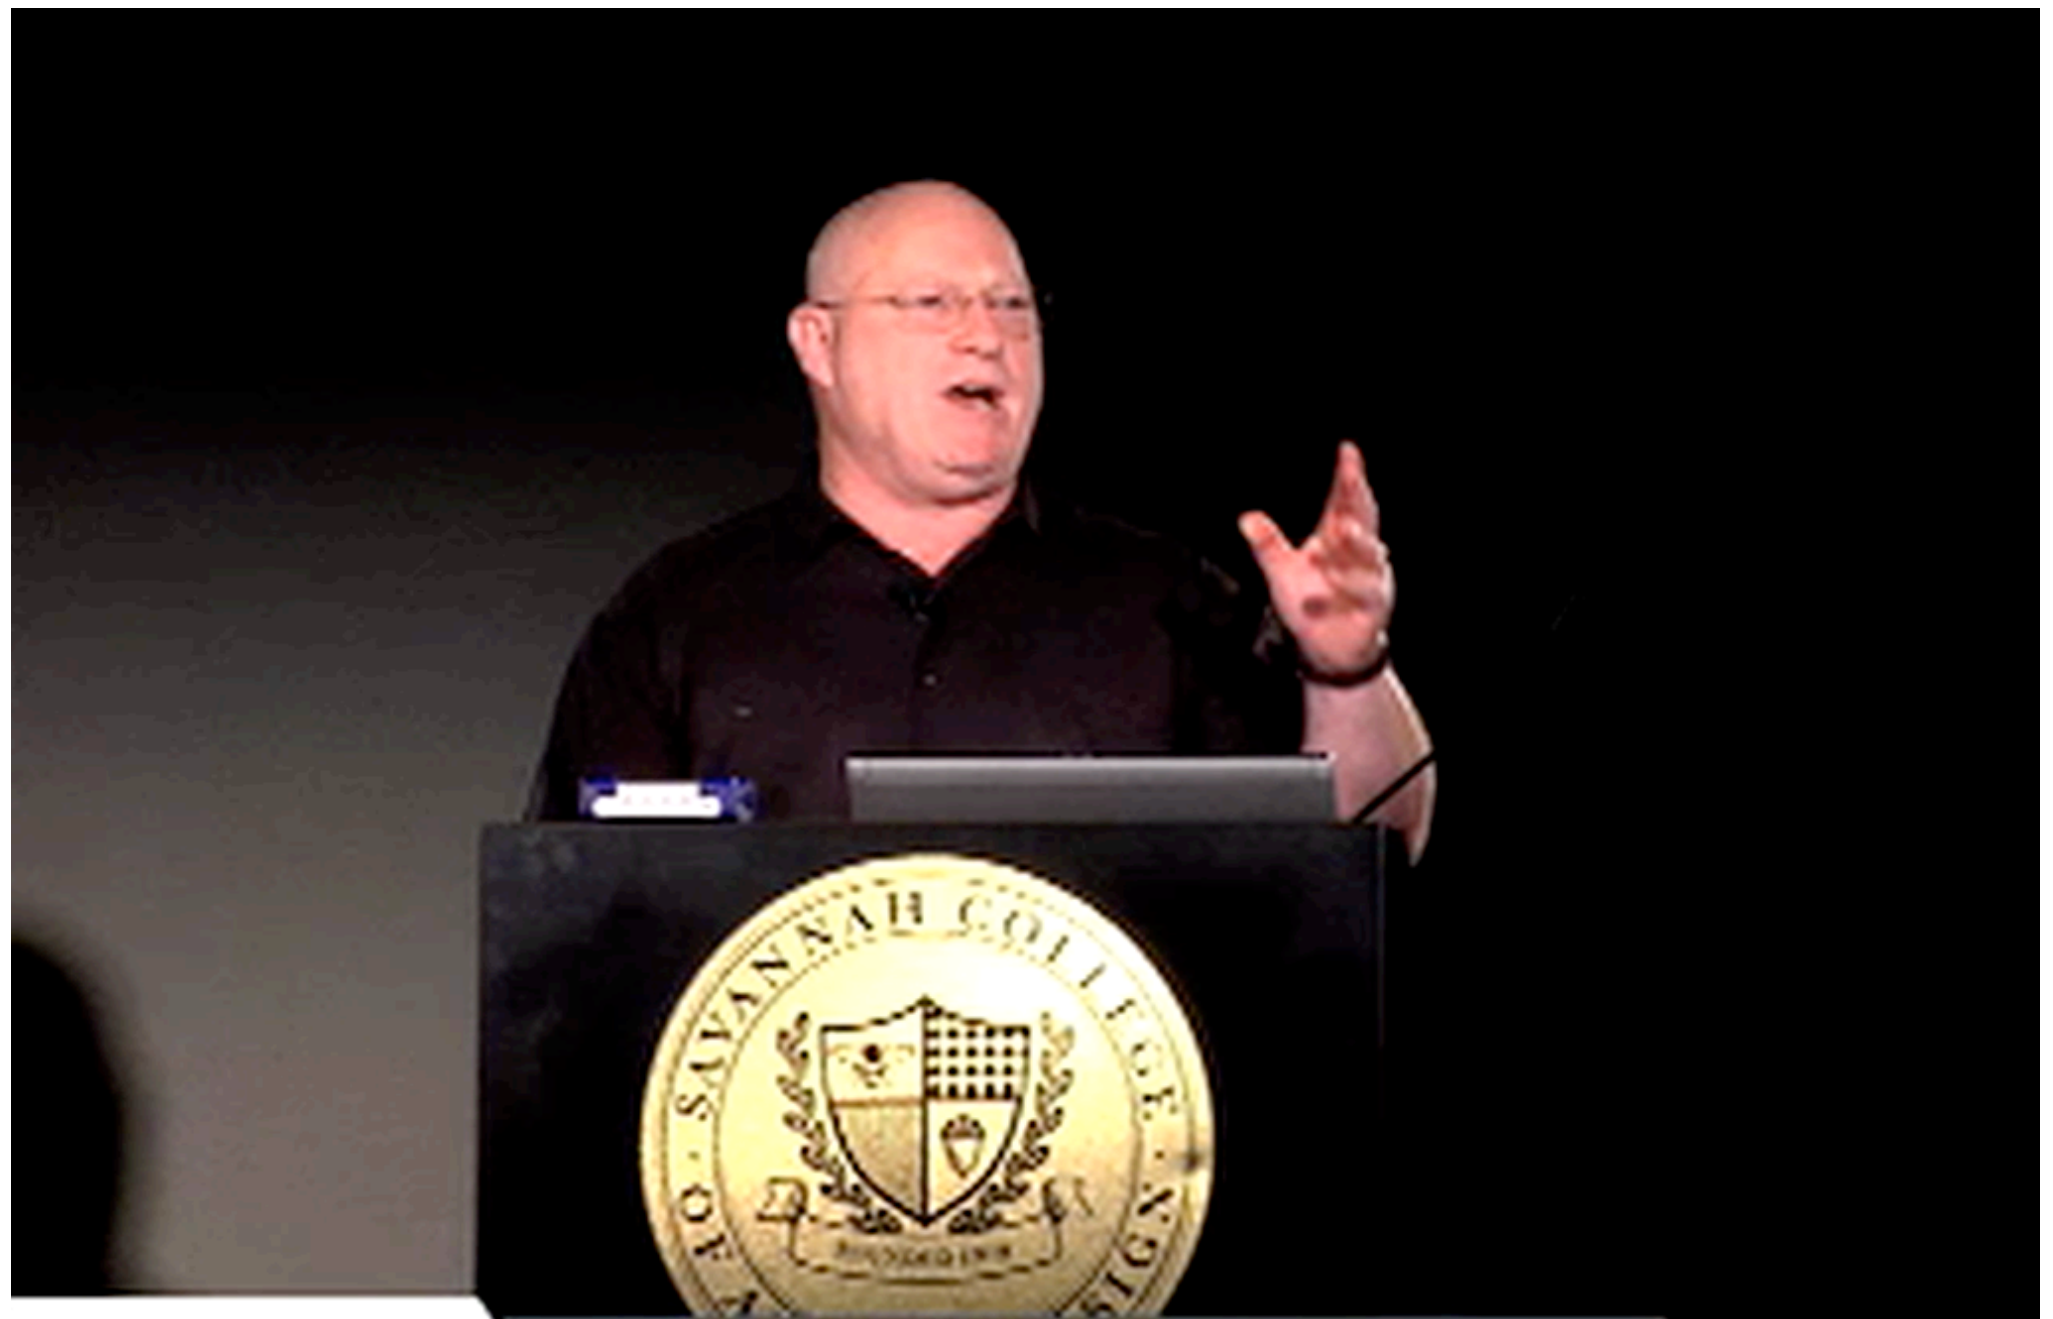

Managers

- Often only industrial driven
- Competition >> Time pressure
- Never taught how to lead developers comfortable
- Understanding the needs for Usability ...
... but dislike to pay for it ...

Philadelphia

(pronounced /fɪləˈdɛlfiə/) is the largest city in Pennsylvania and the sixth most populous city in the United States. It is the county seat of Philadelphia County. It is colloquially referred to as "the City of Brotherly Love" and "the City of the University City". The name Philadelphia is derived from the Greek words φιλαδέλφεια, [pʰil.aː.dɛl.pʰe.i.a], meaning "brotherly love" from philos "love" and adelos "brother". Residents often informally call the city "Philly".
